Puts Wreath On Shrine Of Gandhi

NEW DELHI, India AP—Indians welcomed Mrs. John F. Kennedy warmly today and watched with interest as she placed a wreath of white roses at the shrine of Mohandas K. Gandhi.

More than 100,000 turned out to witness the arrival of America's First Lady from Rome for a nine-day visit to India and other thousands showed up for a glimpse of her as she made a round of official calls.

The pomp and ceremony of state occasions was lacking, for Mrs. Kennedy's visit is billed as semi-official, but the reception had the enthusiasm and color of greetings for such previous visitors as President Eisenhower and Queen Elizabeth II.

Mrs. Kennedy donned a completely white outfit for her round of calls. She wore a white silk rajah coat designed by Oleg Cassini and a broad-brimmed straw hat turned up and worn off the face.

The First Lady, her sister Princess Lee Radziwill, U.S. Ambassador John Kenneth Galbraith and India's ambassador to Washington, B. K. Nehru, stopped first at the massive home of President Rajendra Prasad.

From the presidential house she was driven across the city to a spot near the Jumna River where Gandhi, the hero of Indian independence, was cremated 14 years ago.

Thousands of Indians gathered at the shrine to watch.

Before entering, Mrs. Kennedy took off her Italian-made white shoes and put on gold-trimmed violet velvet slippers. Visitors are not allowed to wear leather footwear.

Mrs. Kennedy walked to the concrete slab where Gandhi was cremated and placed a wreath of white roses. The slab had been decorated with pink and red rose petals, spelling out "Oh God," in Hindi. These were the last words uttered by Gandhi when he was shot down by an assassin in New Delhi.

Three Young Prowlers Are Charged

Three young prowlers charged with second degree burglary in connection with a break-in at a service station and cafe on north Highway 65 early Sunday morning are being held in the Pettis County jail in lieu of $1,000 bonds.

Charged are: Larry E. Brennan, 21, 806 West Sixth; William W. Brennan, 18, on leave from the U. S. Marine Corps, and Roy E. Kronk 24, Independence.

The three were caught in the act of burglarizing Greer's DX Service Station and an adjoining cafe by Sgt. Perry Franklin and Officer Herbert Mayfield, of the Sedalia Police Department, when the officers entered the service station lot to turn around.

Sgt. Franklin said he and Mayfield had made a run out north Highway 65 in an attempt to clear up a mechanical difficulty in their patrol car. The station and restaurant are located about a mile and a half north of Sedalia. Franklin and Mayfield spotted a broken window in the building and took Larry Brennan and his brother, William, into custody outside the station. Sheriff Emmett Fairfax and Deputy Jack Coats were summoned and on further investigation the officers found Kronk inside the station.

Property from the cafe was found in a cardboard box behind the cafe, apparently left by the trio to pick up as they left. The station and cafe were ransacked, money from a cigarette machine and juke box in the cafe was taken.

Sheriff Fairfax said investigation of the Brennan home resulted in the discovery of missing items taken recently in several school break-ins.

Meets Neighbors

Powers the Center Of Warm Reception

BIG STONE GAP, Va. (AP)—U2 pilot Francis Gary Powers was the center of a warm reception today in his first face-to-face meeting with his southwest Virginia neighbors since his release from a Russian prison.

"It's almost impossible to tell how I feel," the pilot, 32, commented on his reception.

"They all seemed happy to see me and, believe me, I'm very glad to be back."

He met with his old friends in a small Norton cafe prior to a more formal homecoming ceremony later in the day at an armory here.

Powers, his hair tinged with gray, told a newsmen, "It sure is nice to hear a Virginia accent again."

Flashing a pleasant smile for all, Powers said he was "just now getting the brunt of the public eye. I had been away from it for several days."

The usually phlegmatic mountain folk greeted the man in the simply cut Ivy League suit with "congratulations Francis" or "We're glad you're back."

His plans to purchase a new suit went awry because of the crowd which gathered to see him, most for the first time. Powers said he would spend a few days in the area with his parents and five sisters.

Most of the 49,000 Wise County residents don't know Powers personally, for he lived in the Pound area only briefly. He spent more time in nearby Jenkins, Ky., and in Grundy, Va., where he went to high school.

But the citizenry does know Powers' father, Oliver Powers, a Norton cobbler.

Powers slipped quietly in under cover of darkness early Sunday after a drive from Washington. He spent the rest of the night chatting with his family, got two hours sleep, and was up again.

After a home-cooked turkey dinner Sunday night, Powers said there were no words to describe his feeling. He said it was the first time he and his five sisters have been together since 1933.

Today's celebration was moved to this coal mining town because the armory, with room for 1,500, offered the best facilities in the county.

Three Killed On Highways On Weekend

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Three persons were killed in traffic accidents in Missouri during the weekend.

Two died Sunday in the head-on collision of two cars near Garden City on Highway 7. One victim, Mrs. Frances Gertrude Meierotto, 52, Kansas City, was alone in one car. The other was Carthel Curtis, 42, Harrison, Ark.

Four others were injured. They were Curtis' wife, Violet, 38; their son, Randy, 9; Cecil Curtis, the other driver, and his wife Iris. They are in fair condition.

The Highway Patrol said Mrs. Meierotto, a widow, was returning to Kansas City after spending Saturday night with her mother, Mrs. C. O. Goodnight of Clinton, Mo., who was ill. The patrol said the cars crashed in the middle of the road.

Harry Benjamin Grupe, Jr., 36, of Florissant, Mo., was killed Saturday in a one-car accident in Hazelwood. His car ran off the road and crashed through a fence. Grupe was a grocery supervisor.

Home Town Shocked

Admits He Killed An Entire Family

NEWPORT, N.H. (AP) — A slight 17-year-old high school boy who police said admitted killing his parents and two brothers was brought back to his saddened and shocked home town today.

John William McGrath was driven under police guard the 50 miles from Concord to Newport for a closed-door juvenile court hearing.

Spattered with blood, the blond and bespectacled youth drove to Concord late Saturday night and told police he killed his entire family because he felt they would be better off dead.

Young McGrath had been under psychiatric treatment for two years.

The slayings in the central New Hampshire community of Newport, a town of 5,500 population about 50 miles northwest of Concord, left neighbors saddened and puzzled. Blond and bespectacled, the boy was considered bright. He was in the last year of high school.

Arrangements were begun for the funerals, presumably a joint service, in the Methodist Church of the Good Shepherd at Newport Wednesday.

The victims were Francis L. McGrath, 37; his wife, Willena, 40; and their sons, Peter F., 13, and Charles A., 5.

Police quoted the 17-year-old as saying in explanation of the slayings Saturday night: "I was thinking about their suffering. They always have troubles."

Police said the youth told them he first thought of killing his parents last Friday.

Police said he told them he arrived home from his supermarket job Saturday night and found his parents angry at each other. The parents went out shortly afterward.

The boy told police he got a Japanese rifle and shot Peter in a hallway. Then he went into a bedroom and killed Charles in his bed.

When Mr. and Mrs. McGrath arrived home a half hour later, the mother was shot through the head as she stepped out of the car. The father tried to drive away but a rifle slug through a car window stopped him. The boy told police his father got out of the car and started to run. A shot felled him.

After shooting his father, the son said he struck him on the head with the butt of the rifle.

The boy then drove to the State Hospital at Concord and asked to see a doctor. Arnold Paradis, hospital police officer, noticed the boy's blood-spattered clothing, put handcuffs on him and took him to police headquarters.

The youth told police his father worked at Maynard, Mass., for Raytheon Co., makers of electronic equipment, and was home only on weekends.

Jury Is Summoned For Blue Laws Case

Sheriff Emmett Fairfax said today he has been ordered to produce a panel of 18 jurors from which a jury will be chosen for the hearing of Martin Singleton, operator of Singleton's Trading Post on south Highway 65, on a charge of violating the Missouri "Blue Laws."

Fairfax said Singleton's attorney had requested the jurors be summoned for the hearing at 10 a. m. Tuesday in the Magistrate Court of Judge Frank Armstrong.

Singleton was the first Pettis County merchant to be charged with a violation of the Sunday sales law.

MPSC Seeks Penalty For Conspiracy

Chariton County Firm Is Charged; Quarry Not Cited

JEFFERSON CITY AP—The Public Service Commission today ordered its attorneys to file suit in circuit court to seek penalty payments from the Land Construction Co. of St. Joseph and four Chariton County dump truck operators.

The commission charged they stole from Hall and Riley quarries had conspired to haul crushed and construction Co., six miles south of Marshall, to the construction company's site near Carrollton. Land had the contract for asphalt concrete resurfacing on 8.59 miles of US 65 between Carrollton and the Missouri River.

The quarry company was not cited because it apparently had no part in the alleged conspiracy.

The dump truck operators—Leo Meag of Salisbury, Warren Farris of Keytesville, J. T. Rutledge of Salisbury and Ezra and Edwin Selkoe of Keytesville, formed a "partnership" called Chariton County Contractors.

Each of the partners paid the costs of his own employees, trucks and insurance and received $1.05 a ton for the rock each hauled, the commission said, although the per ton rates under PSC regulations for hauling stone the necessary 28 miles is $1.37.

The partners and Land argued the partnership was engaged in buying and selling rock and that transportation of the rock is performed by it as personal business.

But the PSC contended it was a conspiracy entered into by the partners and Land Construction. The commission said revocation of the truck operators certificates "is perhaps a too severe penalty and should not be invoked in this instance."

But it did order court action to seek penalties for what it called violations of dump truck regulations.

Burglars Get Sizable Haul Sunday Night

Burglars made off with a sizable haul at two Sedalia business places late Sunday night or early Monday morning, according to police.

Chief of Police Ralph Hamlin investigated a break-in at the Sedalia Implement Company, 2205 South Limit, which was reported at 7:47 a.m. Monday. Just a few minutes later at 8:03 a.m. another break-in was discovered at the Wayne Richardson Coast to Coast store at Broadway and State Fair Blvd. The missing items at the latter store totalled $737.90 in value, police said.

Hamlin said the burglars apparently pried the door of the implement company open with a pry bar, entered and took a number of tools. Missing, according to Hamlin, were a 36-inch bolt cutter, a 14-inch bolt cutter, a four-pound tire changing hammer, a hand brace and a chest drill. The intruders also ransacked several drawers, an unlocked safe and pried open another drawer, which the proprietors said was not locked. Apparently no money was missing, police stated.

The burglars pried open a front door into the Wayne Richardson store, according to investigating officer Sgt. Charles Stuart.

Missing items, according to Stuart, include: 10 transistor radios, four electric razors, 10 pocket knives, 14 wrist watches, 10 pocket watches, two travel clocks, one electric drill, three

Rusk Emphasizes Western Views During Discussions

In Sixth Day

Algerian Peace Talks at Odds

EVIAN, France (AP) — French and Algerian rebel delegates went into their sixth day of talks today still at odds on the makeup and powers of an interim regime to take over until Algeria becomes a nation.

Informants close to the conference in the heavily guarded Hotel Du Parc were still optimistic that the negotiations would end in agreement but conceded it might not come as quickly as hoped.

The delegations are striving to reach agreement on a cease-fire to end the 7½-year-old Algerian rebellion. The accord would be accompanied by a lengthy document spelling out Algeria's future on a basis of self-determination.

Two main issues are said to confront the delegations — the makeup of the provisional executive and the strength of the local force or local gendarmerie which would have chief responsibility for keeping order during the interim period.

Both delegations maintained a strict secrecy rule in contacts with newsmen here and across Lake Geneva in neutral Switzerland where the rebels have their headquarters.

Reliable informants said a lengthy Sunday session failed to produce full agreement on the executive. One reported proposal was for a 12-man panel composed of nine Moslems of no political affiliation and three Europeans. Another called for a panel of four Algerian nationalists, four other Moslems and four Europeans.

The Algerians were reported seeking a larger local force for the interim regime than the French were willing to concede so far.

Court Jury Called, Hears Testimony, Then Is Dismissed

A suit by Central Bookkeeping and Tax Corporation against the Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. was dismissed by the plaintiff in Circuit Court Monday morning after a jury had been summoned to hear the case.

The action evolved from a dispute in which the bookkeeping firm alleged their name was not listed in the phone company's business directory under the classification, "Bookkeeping Services."

After the jurors were selected and sworn in and both sides had made opening arguments the plaintiff dismissed its cause of action without prejudice. Costs were assessed against the bookkeeping firm by Judge Frank Hayes.

Jurors called were: S. J. Timburius, John Zulauf, George Neimeier, Mrs. Mel Carl, C. E. Ferguson, Ernest L. Jones, Alice O. Bidstrup, Clarence Leiter, W. F. Binder, W. P. Nicholson, W. C. Corlew and Leon Morgan.

In strife-torn Algiers, Europeans opened fire from windows and balconies on a French army patrol after it stopped a carload of Europeans trying to break through a military roadblock.

One French cadet officer and a soldier were wounded by the hail of bullets. The soldier fired back, wounding five Europeans. It was the first time Europeans had fired on a French patrol in Algiers.

Railroaders Will Take Strike Vote

Dispute Involves Proposed Changes In Working Rules

CHICAGO (AP)—The Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen announced today a strike vote will be taken among its 80,000 members in a dispute involving proposed changes in working rules on the nation's major railroads.

The action resulted from refusal of the union's general chairman to accept a report of a commission appointed by former President Dwight D. Eisenhower which recommended changes that would cut the work force among railroad workers.

Union officials said the proposed rules changes would affect 20,000 losing their jobs during a 15-month period.

The general chairman of the brotherhood have been meeting in Chicago since Thursday to decide what action to take in the rules dispute.

H. E. Gilbert, president of the Firemen and Enginemen, said the strike ballot will be distributed among the union's members about April 1. He said no date has been set for return and tallying of the vote.

Gilbert said the strike vote authorization came after railroad executives had issued statements ruling out any agreement with the union that was not in conformity with the presidential commission's report.

The union president said the railroads are "asking for trouble by approaching negotiations with preset, arbitrary ground rules."

View Not a Repetition Of Air Lane Complaints

GENEVA AP—Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko spent three hours today discussing Berlin and disarmament problems without reaching any settlement.

Foreign Secretary Lord Home of Britain bowed out of the talks temporarily to allow Rusk to emphasize Western views on the issue.

The discussions took place over a long lunch at the Soviet villa. Both men were accompanied by experts.

Because of the length of the discussion, the Berlin review presumably went further than a mere repetition of previous U.S. complaints over Soviet harassment tactics in the air corridors to the isolated city.

A British spokesman said Home's temporary withdrawal from the foreign ministers' sessions was a logical development since the Americans and the British are speaking in Geneva with one voice.

Rusk, Gromyko and Lord Home—here for the opening of the 17-nation disarmament conference Wednesday—conferred Sunday night at dinner but reports were that little progress was made.

The Western Allies called on Russia to stop harassing Allied air traffic to Berlin lest increasing tensions there endanger the disarmament negotiations.

Gromyko denied knowledge of Soviet interference in the Berlin air corridors.

Rusk also told Gromyko the United States and Britain would like to get to work promptly on a nuclear test ban treaty.

Gromyko dimmed hopes for a quick agreement by raising the old spy-scare issue to counter President Kennedy's demand that ironclad inspection provisions be written into any treaty.

Rusk again warned Gromyko that unless an agreement can be reached by the middle of April, the United States will go ahead with a series of nuclear atmospheric tests in the central Pacific. Home supported the U.S. stand.

After dinner the three men and their interpreters spent about 90 minutes in private conversation, most of the time presumably devoted to Berlin.

When the dinner conference ended shortly before midnight, Rusk told newsmen, "it was a good night's work. We talked about the Berlin incidents."

"We don't like them (the incidents), and we let them know it." Asked whether he obtained any satisfaction from Gromyko, Rusk replied, "We'll find out in a day or two."

Gromyko left the hotel suite in which the dinner was held unsmiling as usual. When newsmen sought to question him, he pointed his finger at them and said, "This is no place for an interview."

Semyon Tsarapkin, Soviet disarmament expert who was with Gromyko, said, "We talked about Berlin and a little about nuclear testing."

Foreign Secretary Home reported, "We talked about preliminary talks. You have to get used to a lot of talks."

Claim Salt Was Killer Of Babies

Make Mistake In Placing Salt In Sugar Containers

BINGHAMTON, N.Y. (AP) — Salt in a sugar can was the possible killer of six babies in a city-owned hospital, and 10 others were made ill by a salt-saturated formula, a hospital spokesman said today.

Doctors worked to save four who were in critical condition.

The hospital spokesman said salt was a definite possibility as the cause of the six deaths. State and local officials were investigating.

Dr. Jason K. Moyer, medical director at Binghamton General Hospital, said, however, that one or two of the children may have died of other causes. The three boys and three girls died within two days, Friday and Saturday.

The salt apparently had been used by mistake since last Wednesday in place of sugar in the feeding formula.

A licensed practical nurse, Lillie Colvin, 29, who refilled the sugar container last Tuesday for the formula room was suspended by the hospital and questioned by Dist. Atty. Stephen Smyk.

No charge was placed against her, however, and she was not held. She said she was positive she had filled the can from a sugar container. She had been with the hospital as a practical nurse for about three months.

Another nurse who made herself a cup of instant coffee discovered table salt in the can in the formula room.

Gov. Smith Is Buried In Richmond

RICHMOND, Mo. (AP)—Forrest Smith was to be buried today in Richmond, where he started his long political career.

The 76-year-old Smith, who died Thursday of a heart attack in Gulfport, Miss., was Missouri's governor 1948-52 and prior to that was state auditor 16 years.

In Jefferson City Sunday about 800 persons jammed the Methodist Church for the funeral service.

"He was one of the beloved governors of our state," said the Rev. D. Russell Lytle, pastor of the church. "He was a true servant of the state. He put its needs and the needs of the citizenry above his own."

"I suppose no man in Missouri had more friends than Forrest Smith."

The mourners included U. S. Sen. Edward V. Long of Clarksville, Rep. Morgan Moulder of Camden, La. Gov. Hilary Bush, and judges, legislators, civic leaders, and former members of Smith's staff.

Cattle Feed Lot Tours Friday Will Visit Six Farms in Area

By MERLE VAUGHAN
Extension Agriculture Agent

Two tours of cattle feed lots are being held this Friday, March 16. The morning tour will start at J. F. Blackburn's, a mile north of Houstonia at 9:15 a.m. It will end at John and Eldon Jones', northwest of LaMonte at 11:30 a.m.

Those planning to attend the afternoon tour will eat lunch in Sedalia and gather at George R. Green's at 1:30 p.m. The Green farm is located about five miles east of Sedalia on Highway 50 and a mile and a half south. The tour will be completed at Lester Dittmer's southeast of Smithton about 3:45 p.m.

Persons assisting with the tour include Gordon Gillespie, head steer buyer for Producers Commission Company at East St. Louis, Ill.; Melvin Bradley, extension animal husbandman and Glen Grimes, extension economist, both from the University of Missouri at Columbia.

Bill Corson of the National Livestock Commission Company of Kansas City called me Friday morning about some other things and indicated that several from the Kansas City market would probably also attend. They probably will bring the station wagon from the Livestock Market Foundation which is equipped with a public address system.

J. F. (Jim) Blackburn, where we start the morning tour, has 35 head of black 1,000 pound cattle on feed. I believe most of these cattle have been purchased, they were put on feed about the first of November and are receiving ground ear corn, a little timothy hay and two pounds of 32 per cent supplement per day.

Our second stop will be at Earl Clevenger's just south of the Saline County line on Highway 127. Earl has 26 black calves on feed. All but one are steers.

These calves have been fed shelled corn in a self feeder. This self feeder holds about 275 bushels and Clevenger fills it with an auger wagon.

These calves are eating about two bales of alfalfa or clover hay per feeding and receive about a pound a day of protein supplement in addition.

These calves have been fed a mineral containing a wormer which Clevenger seems to think has helped somewhat in gains. He is also well pleased with the water heaters that he uses in his automatic water fountains. He said that even on cold nights the calves would go down to the water fountain to drink after they had their fill of shelled corn.

About half of these calves were raised and the other half purchased. He does have starting weights on the calves and also weighed them again recently so we will have some figures on gains the day of the meeting.

The last morning stop will be made at Eldon Jones' in the northwest corner of LaMonte township. Eldon and his brother John work together and have 66 head of 1,000 pound steers on feed.

These steers are coming two years old, were wintered a year ago, grazed last summer and have been on feed since mid-November.

The group of steers are eating about 20 bushels of crimped ear corn per day. They are also receiving a 22 per cent protein supplement containing stilbesterol.

We hope to arrive at Jones' by 11 a.m. and to leave by 11:30 a.m. so that we can get to town in time to finish lunch by 1 p.m.

Afternoon Tour Starts
At Green's at 1:30 p.m.

The afternoon tour will start at George R. Green's at 1:30 p.m. The Green farm is located about five miles east of Sedalia on Highway 50 and a mile and a half south.

These Colorado steers weighed 685 pounds when they were purchased in mid-October. They were grazed about three weeks and put on silage in early November. They have been eating all the silage they would eat plus two pounds of supplement and a small amount of grain to January 1st. Since January 1st they have been eating around six pounds of shelled corn per day. They are not receiving any hay.

The 20 homegrown calves weighed 430 pounds at weaning and have had the same grain and supplement as the others.

The supplement being fed to both batches of cattle is the Purdue supplement A. This mixture includes 650 pounds of soybean oil meal, 140 pounds alfalfa, 140 pounds liquid molasses, 5 pounds of bone meal, 7 pounds of salt plus Vitamin A.

There's No Pat Answer

Argument may never be wholly stilled over the actions taken by Francis Gary Powers in those moments when his damaged U-2 plane plummeted toward Soviet soil nearly two years ago.

Some notions die hard. At the time of this celebrated incident, reports were common that Powers' arrangement with the Central Intelligence Agency included his positive obligation to destroy himself and his camera-equipped plane if capture seemed imminent.

Those reports appear now to have been incorrect. He was not obliged to kill himself, though he had the option to do so if he chose.

Perhaps every American, as he reads Powers' account of those critical moments of descent from 68,000 feet, should ask himself how he believes he would have acted.

If any of us had been in Powers' place, what impulses would have governed? There, within reach, was the "destruct" button which could destroy the aircraft—and its pilot—in 70 seconds. How many men would have pushed it before trying first to get out of the plane?

Duty did not compel such self-sacrifice. Powers, buffeted about in his downward spinning U-2, had the choice only briefly. For soon he could no longer reach the crucial button.

While he had the choice, he says, he thought about pushing "destruct" even before he knew whether he could escape the plane or not. But then a stronger compulsion—to get out alive—took command.

"My mind was fixed on getting into an ejection position," he says, referring to the possibility of using the ejector mechanism.

He never did manage that. In the grip of powerful gravity forces, he was pulled half out of the plane. When his face shield frosted over, he could see almost nothing. Somehow he tore himself loose from the plane, his parachute opened automatically, and he descended safely.

Few if any of us can have any idea what we would have done in similar circumstances of maximum personal peril, with a choice of suicide or trying to survive.

Fanatics like the wartime Japanese kamikaze fliers may commit suicide. But we Americans are not raised to be fanatics. Our whole urge is toward the preservation and dignifying of life, of every single life possible.

Powers seems to have responded to that urge in those chaotic minutes when his decisions had to come thick and fast.

Taking the "other course" did cross his mind, as it did earlier when he took along a poisoned needle for use if he were tortured.

Any who would now condemn him for exercising his option to live must consider honestly how they in similar circumstances, would deal with the dilemma he faced.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Lives of Dead Men Figure in the News

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON—A lot of people have written me asking about the $61,000, largely in cash, which the late Alton Jones of Cities Service carried with him en route to fish with President Eisenhower when he lost his life in that tragic jet crash in Long Island Sound. Others have written critically, claiming that it was unfair to report on the activities of a dead man.

In this connection, I should state that when Alton Jones was alive I attempted many times to get his comment regarding the regular installments he made to the upkeep of the Eisenhower farm. He had no comment.

I happened to like Mr. Jones. I could understand why President Eisenhower enjoyed his company. I also knew and liked another man whose name figured in the news last week after he was dead—the late Sen. George Bender of Ohio.

The United States government last week charged that Bender, a Republican, had accepted a bribe of $100,000 for stopping prosecution of three stock market manipulators by the Eisenhower administration. Attorneys charged that this was smearing a dead man, but the federal judge ruled against them.

He knew that, distasteful as it may be, it is sometimes necessary to report on the activities of men where large amounts of money are involved, even though they cannot defend themselves.

More Mystery

Two other men, also dead, figured in a mysterious money transaction the other day—Sen. Owen Brewster of Maine and Henry Grunewald, the so-called mystery man of Washington.

They got into the news because their widows brought suit against the Missouri Pacific Railroad for the recovery of $650,000 in railroad bonds which Grunewald had given Brewster in a mysterious transaction.

However, I have in my files the photostat of a check for $5,000 which Grunewald gave Brewster in 1950 when then Congressman Richard Nixon was running for the Senate in California and appealed to Brewster for funds. Brewster didn't have any cash on hand, so went to Grunewald, and got it.

When Brewster and Grunewald were both alive I published this and asked them about it. It was not denied. In fact, Grunewald, a frank and likable man, went on TV with me and discussed the check publicly.

Grunewald was a heavy contributor to both political parties, though at that time he seemed to favor the Republicans. Senator Brewster was chairman of the Republican Senate committee to re-elect GOP senators. In the California election, Nixon faced a primary fight with another Republican, and Brewster should not have financed him against another Republican.

Nixon now faces a similar primary against a Republican for governor, and after that a final showdown with Gov. Pat Brown which will either make or end Nixon's political future. That's why the Jones cash, reported to be for Nixon's campaign, was important.

Grunewald never told me about the $650,000 of Missouri railroad bonds he gave Brewster, but he did tell me that he had helped Brewster's money-raising efforts substantially. It would now seem that Grunewald put up the railroad bearer bonds as collateral for Brewster's money-raising. At any rate they were lost, and now Mrs. Grunewald would like to have them back.

Unfortunately, when large amounts of money are either used in politics, or carried by persons who have engaged in politics, they must necessarily become subjects of wide discussion, whether men are dead or not. The Corrupt Practices Act was passed expressly for the purpose of requiring full disclosure of political funds.

For instance, when $11,000 was found in the back seat of a taxi after Carmine De Sapio, then head of Tammany, got out, it became the subject of wide comment. De Sapio is still alive. He never claimed the money.

Senators Brewster and Bender, Henry Grunewald, and Alton Jones, the oil magnate, unfortunately are all dead. But through court action by their widows, court action by the U.S. government, and by the tragic hand of an airplane pilot, all have been brought into the public eye—because of their use of large amounts of cash.

And if we are to beat Mr. Khrushchev's challenge that communism will win over capitalism, the American people must have the right not only to speculate on but dig into the motives behind that cash.

Hoffa-Go-Round

So many cabinet members and Washington big shots have been subpoenaed for the Jimmy Hoffa trial in Orlando, Fla., beginning today (March 12) that government witnesses are trying to quash the subpoenas. . . . Secretary of Labor Goldberg has been served, also Sen. John McClellan of Arkansas, while process servers have been trying to track down Attorney General Bobby Kennedy and ex-Attorney General Bill Rogers. . . . Teamsters' Attorney Charles Davis plans to argue in Orlando that it will cost $50,000 to transport 150 Detroit witnesses to Florida, therefore the trial should be held in Detroit. The government fears the atmosphere in Detroit, where Hoffa has long been a power, is too pro-labor.

An Alaskan Princess

An Alaskan princess has as good a chance as any other representative from the fifty states to become the Cherry Blossom Queen this year. She is Gladys Marie Walker, an Eskimo.

Gladys, age 21, works for Alaska's representative-at-large, Ralph J. Rivers in Washington. She spends most of her time correcting misapprehensions about her native state. She says: "We don't rub noses, and we don't live in igloos, but most of us live in well insulated single story houses, built above the ground without a cellar because the ground shifts so frequently."

About 19,000 of the 226,000 people in Alaska are Eskimos. An Eskimo was the first president of the first Senate in Alaska.

Gladys plans to return to Anchorage, her home, in a few years, but in the meantime, she tells everyone about life in her home state. She likes the cold climate of Alaska, which she says is not damp like the Washington winters. She wears her "parka" or as she calls it, "parki," which identifies her as a native Eskimo, although she is often taken for Hawaiian or Japanese.

When the wheel of chance is spun on the decisive night when the Cherry Blossom Queen is chosen, Gladys may be the winner.

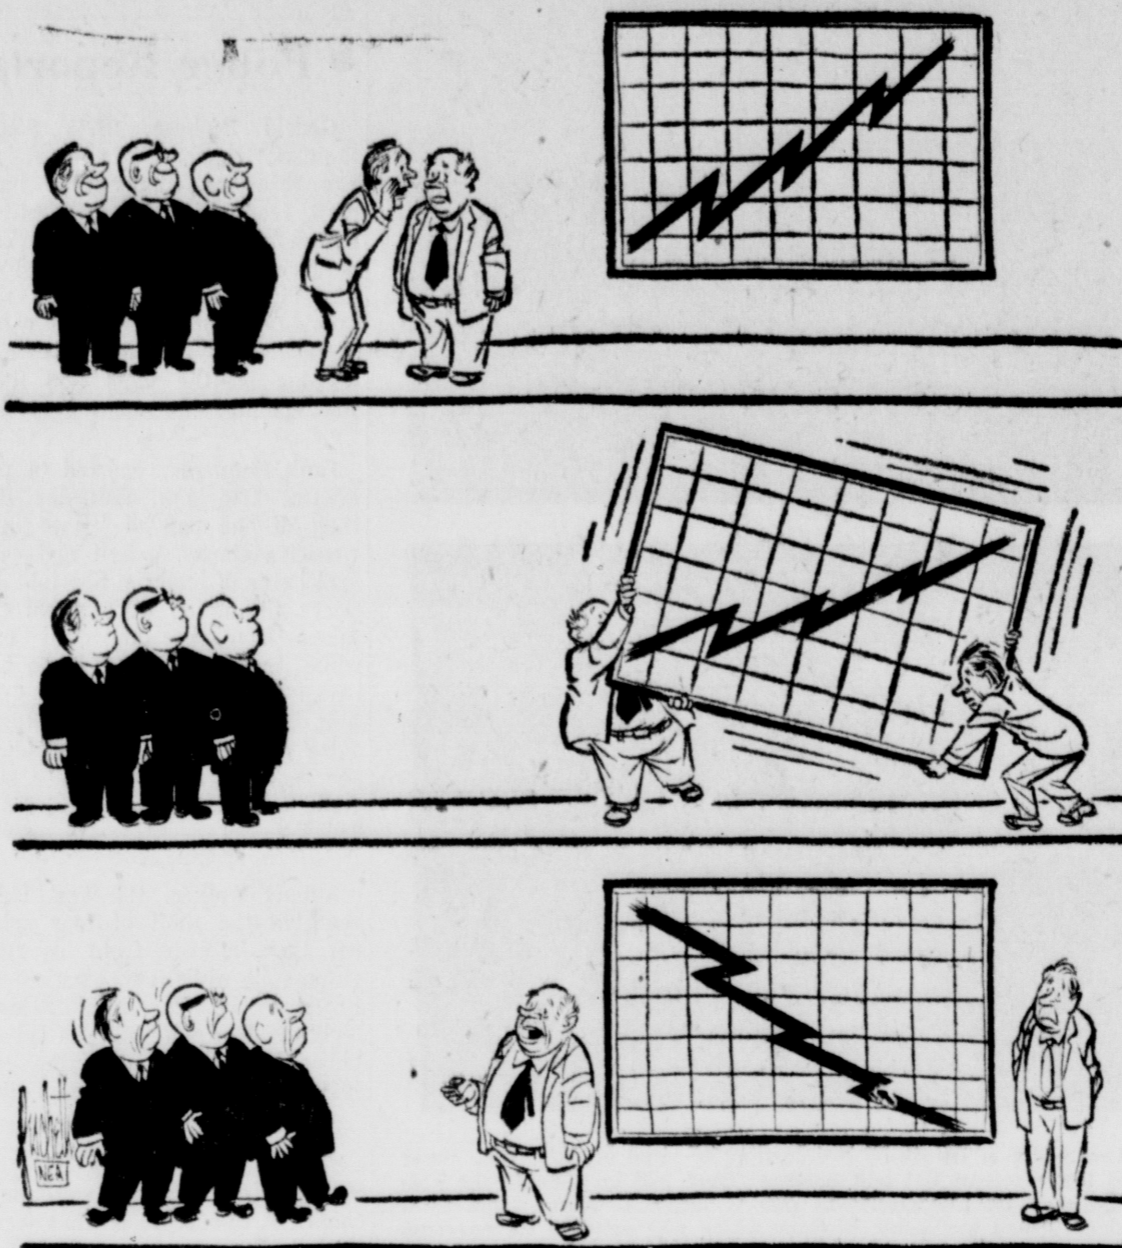

Restaurants of the United States serve about 67 million meals daily.

Congressional District Trickery Fades

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP)—Ho-hum once again looks like the epitaph on efforts to boost the House membership and to force states to stop playing tricks with congressional districts.

Every so often there's a burst of activity in the House on these twin problems. In the end the House shows too little interest to do anything. It seems the same this year. History tells the story.

The constitutional convention of 1787 decided each state should have two senators, elected by state legislatures. This was changed by the 17th amendment in 1913 to let the voters do the electing.

The convention, however, said voters should directly elect representatives in the House. This was to make Congress more democratic.

The arrangement was that the number of representatives allowed each state must be based on its population. To check on the population there had to be a census every 10 years. It's been that way since the first Congress, which began with 65 House members, representing about 30,000 each.

Every 10 years thereafter until 1913, with the exception of 1843, Congress increased the number of House members to keep pace with the growing population. In 1913 there were 435 members.

House membership has remained at 435 since, although the population of about 185 million now is twice what it was in 1913. All attempts since 1913 to raise the permanent House membership have failed.

There have been arguments for it: the work of the 435 has increased enormously. In 1913 theoretically each House member represented only 211,000 people, now it is 413,000. This means the people, so the argument goes, are getting less representation.

The overriding argument against enlargement comes down to this: to increase the membership every time the population went up would make the House eventually unmanageable; there has to be a stop some time, so make it now.

In recent years there have been proposals to up the membership from two or three to 50 or more representatives. The most recent, calling for a boost of three, was in effect killed last week.

So it seems the limit will remain at 435 for another 10 years when, after the 1970 census, more arguments begin.

There is also the question of cracking down on states' tricks with congressional districts. That has a long history of no desire to crack down.

The constitution lets states fix the time, place and manner of choosing representatives but it says Congress can alter the states' regulations when it wishes.

It has done very feeble wishing.

It never passed a law until 1842. At that time 17 states were electing House members by districts. Nine were electing them at large. Running at large means a candidate must win the voters of an entire state instead of the simpler, easier job of winning them in one district.

The 1842 law told the states to elect by districts. It also said the districts should be contiguous. In less polite language this meant a district should be in one piece and not scattered or separated.

State legislatures, then and now, have played politics in deciding the size and population of districts, depending upon which party ran the legislature. Some call this gerrymandering, some plain larceny.

But in all the laws passed by Congress on districting since 1842—which hardly meant more than telling state legislatures to be nice—Congress has never told the states what its districts should be.

Under present law the simple requirements of the 1842 law have been dropped. So there are still cries of gerrymandering and some members still have to run at large.

In this year's congressional elections, as a result of the 1960 census showing shifts in population, nine states gain House seats, 16 lose some. Massachusetts is one of the losers.

There, where the Democratic legislature and Republican governor can't agree on redistricting to allow for a lost two seats, if they don't get together, all candidates for the remaining 12 House seats may have to run at large.

New York also lost two seats but the Republican-run legislature has redistricted the state. Now New York Democrats are complaining the Republicans did them in.

As for doing anything about it—Congress' attitude is still ho-hum.

HIGHLIGHTS AND SIDELIGHTS FROM YOUR STATE CAPITOL

by Russell A. Mann Jr.
Missouri Press News Service

Machinery Readied For Sharing Plan

Here are some highlights and sidelights on the plan approved by citizens March 6 to share the state gasoline tax with cities and counties and abolish city gasoline taxes except when approved by a two-thirds majority:

Revenue Director M. E. Morris says it is his intention to have first payments to cities and counties in the mails the first part of May. The sharing plan goes into effect April 1 and the payment intended for May will be based upon April collections. Joe Boone, assistant to Morris in charge of setting up machinery to allocate funds, says a great deal depends on city collectors and county clerks getting information requested of them into the revenue department promptly. Boone says the information is necessary in order to compute the precise share of the state gasoline tax for cities and counties according to the formula set out in the sharing plan.

Funding of the King Road Bill for county roads from the state's general operating fund ceases as of April 1 when county courts begin to accumulate their share of the state gasoline tax for county roads. Allocated up to April 1 is $1,987,499.99 of the $5,300,000 King Road Bill appropriation made by the last legislature. Thus, $3,312,500.01 of the King Road money remains in the general operating fund and is available for other uses. In addition, whatever counties do not use money allocated up to April 1 that money will be available for something else.

Of the 108 municipalities levying their own gasoline taxes, early returns of the voting on Amendment No. 1 indicate that not a single one turned down the amendment which abolished these taxes.

Subscriber confidence in their newspapers appears amply demonstrated in the sharing plan vote. Practically all newspapers were for the plan. However, Publisher Jack Stapleton Jr. of the Kennett Daily Dunklin Democrat in Dunklin County opposed the plan and the plan lost in Dunklin County. But Publishers Allen Black and Miller Moll of the Malden Press-Merit in north-eastern Dunklin County supported the plan and the plan carried in Malden and immediate area. Then, Publisher Jack Stapleton Sr. of the Stanberry Headlight in Gentry County opposed the plan and the plan lost in Gentry County. But Publisher Louis N. Bowman of the King City Tri-County News in south Gentry County supported the plan and it carried in King City.

Just for fun, a certain state senator (may he remain forever nameless in this regard) bet a dollar a county against the sharing plan. Since the plan carried more than 100 counties, the senator lost more than $100. How much fun can you have?

One of the more bizarre episodes of the campaign came about as the result of the last-minute placement of a small ad opposing the sharing plan in half a dozen or so western Missouri newspapers over the signature of the Tax Equity Association, a group formed in 1937 opposing a Kansas City earnings tax proposal and which has been dormant since. The ads were placed by an association of officer without the knowledge or consent of the association president, B. F. McCarty, Independence publisher. McCarty resigned thereafter.

Industrial Bonds Remain Doubtful

Missouri communities which plan bond issues for industrial development under provisions of a constitutional amendment approved in 1960 and a subsequent enabling act of the General Assembly still are stymied.

It appears now that a court test necessary on the validity of such bonds will not be forthcoming for some months.

Monroe City which voted bonds last Fall was expected to provide the test. However, a state Supreme Court ruling on a mandamus action brought by Charleston on a similar issue appears to have muddled the Monroe City test. In effect, the Court said Charleston had voted its bonds before the enabling act took effect; this despite an emergency clause appended to the act so that it would take effect before the normal time. Refusal in the Charleston case may have affected the Monroe City case since Monroe City voted its bonds a week before Charleston.

Secretary of State Warren E. Hearnes, whose hometown is Charleston, says that city probably will start all over. He reported that Monroe City at the time was undecided.

Union Goes To Court On Wage Act Decision

Central Missouri union labor building trades and construction workers have filed a writ of prohibition in Cole County Circuit Court to alter a wage scale for construction of a high school building at Paris in Monroe County.

The State Industrial Commission had determined under provisions of the controversial Prevailing Wage Act that carpenters on the school job should receive as a minimum $2.25 an hour. Union carpenters claim a minimum of $3 an hour in Monroe County.

Search for Freedom

(1) The Great Stalemate

by Don Oakley and John Lane

"We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights, that among these are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness."

Thousands of years of human development lie behind these words in the Declaration of Independence. Today, the nation that bases its existence upon that document and what it stands for faces the greatest challenge in its history.

A precarious armed truce governs the affairs of nations in the second half of the 20th century. It is a stalemate between two great powers, two opposed ideologies. Small and emerging nations have become pawns in a lethal chess game. The threat of nuclear destruction by intercontinental missiles maintains the world in uneasy balance.

Each side believes it is in the right, that the course of history favors it. One system exalts the rights of the individual; the other, the community of individuals, the state. Both claim to hold the promise of a better life for all men, yet both move steadily closer to destroying all men.

Since man appeared on earth, he has been engaged in a search for freedom, not always sure just what he meant by "freedom." It has been more than a search—it has been a fight. Today, man reaches out for the stars—challenges the universe itself—and at the same time talks of hiding in the earth for protection from himself.

Must two halves of the world clash? Will war, once again, be the only means of resolving this impasse of ideologies?

To attempt an answer, the historical roots of both systems must be examined. The story of man's long search for freedom, for just law and government, must be reviewed. It begins with the primitive clan. It tells of conquest and empires, dreaming philosophers, revolutions and repressions, patriots and tyrants. It is a story still being written.

THE PHILADELPHIA BULLETIN: Room in Colleges.—With all the discussion of Federal aid to education and of enlarging colleges to meet increased demand, it will come as a surprise to most people to know that the colleges of the country still have room for every qualified high school graduate.

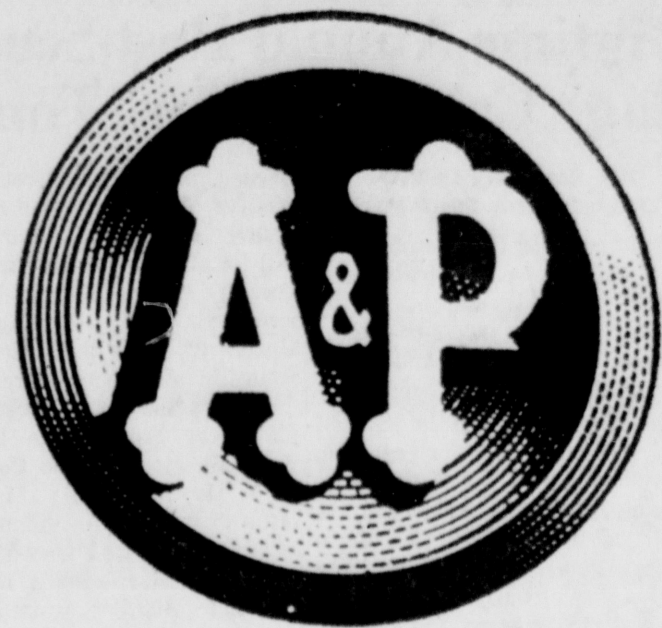

This does not mean that the prospective student can always get into the college where his parents went, or where he might like to go. But there are some mighty fine ones which do have vacancies.

This information does not come, oddly enough, from any opponent of aid to education but from the National Educational Association itself, which overlooks no opportunity to promote more and better schooling.

One difficulty is the failure or refusal of many parents to realize that their offspring are not college material and would be far better off in a junior college or trade school. Some of the smaller colleges which do have openings have scholastic ratings even higher than the larger, big name and prestige institutions.

A booklet put out by the NEA performs a real service in presenting facts instead of myths, and in pointing out the many misconceptions which exist concerning the state of education throughout the country.

No Clear Line Taken

Bigtime Annual Post-Season Cage Carnivals Start Tonite

By JIM HACKLEMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

Big-time college basketball's annual post-season carnivals start tonight. But a prime bit of unfinished business remains before a clear line can be taken on either of the major tournaments.

The single spot left in each of the two classics, the coast-to-coast NCAA and the National Invitation at New York, will be filled after tonight's showdown between Cincinnati and Bradley at Evansville, Ind. The two clubs tied for the Missouri Valley title. The winner gets the conference NCAA berth while the loser goes to the NIT.

Attention is focused on the game principally because Cincinnati captured the national championship in last year's NCAA by defeating mighty Ohio State and another clash between the Bearcats and Buckeyes has been long awaited.

Should Bradley topple Cincinnati tonight—the Braves split in two games with the 'Cats during the regular season, it would take some of the luster from the NCAA but would send Cincinnati into the NIT as title favorites.

Bradley, a nationally ranked power like Cincinnati, also would be a top contender in either of the tournaments.

The NCAA, with 16 conference representatives and 9 independent teams gunning for the crown, begins play tonight. First-round action will be completed Tuesday night, and the four regional semifinals and finals are set for Friday and Saturday. National semifinals and final will be staged at Louisville Friday and Saturday, March 23-24.

The 12-team NIT has six double-headers set for Madison Square Garden, including first-round competition Thursday night and Saturday afternoon. Quarterfinals will be played Saturday night and Tuesday night, March 20. The semifinals are Thursday night, March 22, and the title match Saturday afternoon, March 24.

Here is the NCAA schedule: East at Philadelphia tonight—Wake Forest (Atlantic Coast) vs. Yale (Ivy League); Massachusetts (Yankee) vs. Villanova (large); The Wake Forest-Yale winner plays St. Joseph's of Pennsylvania (Middle Atlantic), and the West Virginia-Villanova winner meets the NYU-Massachusetts winner in the regional semifinals at the University of Maryland.

Midwest at the University of Kentucky tonight—Bowling Green (Mid-American) vs. Butler (large); and Western Kentucky (Ohio Valley) vs. Detroit (large). Regional semifinals at the University of Iowa pits the Bowling Green-Butler winner against Kentucky (Southeastern) and the Western Kentucky-Detroit winner against Ohio State (Big Ten).

Midwest at Southern Methodist tonight—Texas Tech (Southwest) vs. Air Force (at large); and Creighton (at large) vs. Memphis State (at large). The Texas Tech-Air Force winner meets Colorado (Big Eight) and the Creighton-Memphis State winner takes on Cincinnati or Bradley in the regional semifinals at Kansas State.

West at Oregon State Tuesday night—Oregon State (at large) vs. Seattle (at large) and Utah State (Skyline) vs. Arizona State University (Border). The Oregon State-Seattle winner faces Pepperdine (WCAC); and the Utah State-Arizona State winner plays UCLA (Big Five) at Brigham Young in the regional semifinals.

Loyola of Chicago, St. John's of New York, Houston and Cincinnati or Bradley are seeded teams in the 25th annual NIT, drawing byes into the quarterfinals. Wichita plays Dayton and Temple tackles defending champion Providence in the opening double-header Thursday night. Holy Cross meets Colorado State University; Duquesne goes against Navy in Saturday afternoon's first-round games.

First Days Of League Exhibitions

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

The scorecard for the first two days of major-league baseball's exhibition season shows:

1. A narrowly averted million-dollar accident when third baseman Ron Santo and experimental first baseman Ernie Banks of the Chicago Cubs collided with a thud while chasing a pop up in a game with Boston.

2. Mack (The Knife) Jones, rookie hopeful with the Milwaukee Braves, leading the home run hitters.

3. Cincinnati's National League champion Reds solidly whacked in both games with Chicago's White Sox.

Santo, the Cubs' outstanding third baseman selected as the sophomore of the year after a 1961 campaign in which he hit at a 284 clip with 23 homers and 83 RBI, was carried off the field on a stretcher during Sunday's 6-5 loss to the Red Sox at Scottsdale, Ariz.

Chasing a foul pop in the sixth inning, Santo crashed into Banks and was knocked down. He rose, then collapsed. Taken to a hospital, examination showed Santo suffered rib bruises from a knee blow to the solar plexus area. Banks was not hurt.

Jones, a 326 swinger at Louisville up for his second try with the Braves, stroked a solo homer in a losing effort Saturday, then powered the Braves to a 10-6 thumping of Detroit at Bradenton, Fla., Sunday, with a pair that accounted for five runs.

The Reds lost their opener to the White Sox 8-2 and were kicked around 10-3 in Sunday's game at Tampa, Fla., with three first-line pitchers—Jim O'Toole, Bob Purkey and Jim Brosnan—allowing 10 hits. The trio accounted for 45 wins last season.

The National League's two new entries—New York and Houston—had one victory in four games after the weekend action. The Mets edged St. Louis 4-3 Sunday at St. Petersburg to check into the win column, but the Colts were beaten 8-7 by the Los Angeles Angels at Palm Springs, Calif.

In other Sunday games, the New York Yankees beat Baltimore 5-4 at Miami; Philadelphia defeated Minnesota 3-1 at Clearwater, Fla.; San Francisco nipped Cleveland 9-8 in 10 innings at Phoenix, Ariz.; Washington edged Pittsburgh 7-6 at Fort Myers, Fla. and Kansas City whipped the Los Angeles Dodgers 7-5 at West Palm Beach, Fla.

The Red Sox beat the Cubs with a run in the eighth on singles by Bob Tillyman, Lu Clinton and Don Gile. The Braves needed Jones' homers and one each by brothers Hank and Tommie Aaron to subdue the Tigers, who got consecutive homers from Steve Boros, Bill Freehan and Chico Fernandez.

The White Sox beat the Reds with rookie Bob Farley and Charley Smith providing home runs. The Mets won it with three in the eighth and one in the ninth on Richie Ashburn's double and Elio Chacon's single after being held hitless by the Cards for seven innings.

The Angels scored five unearned runs in the seventh for the win over the Colts as Houston pitcher Dick Farrell hit three batters. Elston Howard's three-run homer in the eighth inning brought the Yankees from behind to beat the Orioles.

Hickman Play Proves Too Fast For Kirkwood

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Columbia Hickman's smooth play proved too much for peppy, fast-breaking bird-dogging Kirkwood in the Class I State High School Basketball tournament Saturday night and Hickman walked off with the championship 57-47.

The Hickman Kewpies never trailed the Pioneers, who gained the title match by running the opposition into the floor.

Mike Richardson and Dave Fearheller, named most valuable player in the tournament, gave the Kewpies an early 4-0 lead and from then on Hickman made the Pioneers play their brand of ball. Fearheller led Hickman with 28 points. He scored 72 in three tournament games.

The Kewpies ended the season with a 28-1 record. Kirkwood was 22-6.

Roger Shaw led Kirkwood with 18 points.

Joining Fearheller on the all-tournament team were Shaw, Robert Wilson and Jim Gant of Hadley Tech and Danny Bolden of Springfield Central.

Hadley downed Springfield 91-76 in the consolation game.

NEW MISSOURI COACH — Robert Vannatta, basketball coach at Memphis State College, has been chosen head coach of the University of Missouri cage team and will succeed Wilbur (Sparky) Stalcup. Stalcup will become assistant director of athletics after 16 years of coaching at M.U. (AP Wirephoto)

Bob Vannatta Named MU Cage Coach

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP)—Robert Vannatta, a Missourian with a 15-year college coaching record of 360 victories and only 95 defeats, is the new basketball coach at the University of Missouri.

Vannatta, 42, coach at Memphis State College since 1956, will assume his new duties as soon as his Memphis team completes play in the NCAA basketball tournament. It faces Creighton University in a first round game at Dallas tonight.

Vannatta will succeed Wilbur (Sparky) Stalcup, who left the basketball coaching post after 16 years to become assistant director of athletics at M.U.

Selection of the new coach was announced Saturday, although the university had indicated it would not be made until today.

Vannatta was given a three-year contract. His salary was not disclosed.

Vannatta grew up in Columbia and was graduated from Central College at Fayette, Mo. He gained a master's degree in physical education at Missouri and coached basketball successively at Army, Bradley, Southwest Missouri and Memphis.

He said there were many reasons he decided to accept the Missouri job.

"One that has been in the back of my mind ever since I started coaching was that I wanted to be there," he said. "Everybody wants to go back some day."

Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: I'm 24. My husband is 29. We've been married for three years. Glenn was always moody but now his moods scare me out of my wits. He sulks for days, and then, for no reason, he becomes overly cheerful and generous and wants to give the world the shirt off his back.

Last week we were watching a popular TV personality interview a prominent right-wing gentleman. The interviewer was making his guest look pretty ridiculous. My husband got mad and proceeded to smash the TV set with a hammer.

I've begged him to see a doctor but he says he's not sick. He claims the world is sick and that he is well. I actually fear for my health and safety. I have the feeling if I don't get away from him you may be reading about me in the newspapers. Please tell me what to do.—TER-RIFIED.

Dear Terrified: Give your husband a choice. Tell him he can go to a doctor and talk about his emotional fluctuations or you will go to a lawyer and talk about separate maintenance.

No woman should live with a man who scares her "out of her wits." Glenn's emotional peaks and valleys are symptoms of mental illness.

Dear Ann Landers: I had lunch with a friend today. She brought along three columns of yours she had clipped from the newspaper. They are all anti-mother-in-law.

Please Ann, straighten her out. I happen to know that you are not a mother-in-law hater. My friend insists you are. And furthermore, she brought along the "evidence" to prove it.

Certainly, Ann, you are aware that the human heart has room for all kinds of love. You know that a man can love his wife, his mother, and his child at the same time, but in different ways. I know, too, as you must, that there are jealous and domineering mothers-in-law who are trouble makers, but some wives can be jealous and domineering and make plenty of trouble, too.

Please, Ann, set the record straight. There must be others who also have the wrong impression. Thank you.—HELEN.

Dear Helen: Anti-mother-in-law 22222. Who, me? Never! Particularly now that I am about to become one!

Successful parents raise their children to be independent — and by that I mean self-sufficient, self-supporting and independent of THEM.

In-laws can be wonderful, and many of them are. But the acid test of a good in-law is one who leaves married children alone and allows them to make their own decisions and lead their own lives.

Dear Ann Landers: I've been going steady with this terrific guy for almost a year. He joined the Marines four months ago.

We took an oath to be faithful

NEW WAY TO BE SUDDENLY SLIM

Are you a woman whose figure is on the good side but might look perfect? You'll be thrilled by the new easy way science has discovered for you to become Suddenly Slim. If you're more than 15 pounds overweight, then this idea is not for you. If your weight problem falls within this range, then you can realize a new smoother figure today, without diet or exercise.

Suddenly Slim is an all-new kind of 4-oz. girdle constructed of science fibers. A startling innovation is the sheer front panel. This is permanently stiffened by a science process and cannot give or sag. It's surrounded by a slimming action border. A feather-stitched panel down each side of this girdle will contour your hips if they are a problem. The girdle itself is of "wonder" Lycra spandex fiber. It feels like nothing on but has such slimming strength it gives your figure everything that's possible with a foundation.

"Suddenly Slim" is the peak achievement of the designer-genius, Olga.

End of the IRA Irish Republicans Break Up Forces, De-fuse Bombs

EDITOR'S NOTE: When St. Patrick's Day rolls around this Saturday, it'll be without the Irish Republican Army. After nearly half a century, the IRA has just disbanded as an underground fighting force. Now all that remains is a review of its past, a rich blend of the tragic, the humorous, and the bizarre.

By HUGH MULLIGAN
Associated Press Writer

Now, Paddy dear, and did you hear the news that's going round? They say the IRA — the Irish Republican Army, mind you — has dumped its arms, defused its bombs and henceforth will pursue Ireland neutral and out of alliances that might lead to war.

How's that for a shocker? You'd no more expect to find the IRA thumping for peace than you'd expect to see an Orangeman sprouting a shamrock come St. Patrick's Day this Saturday. But that's the word from Dublin.

It seems that IRA is so down in the mouth over its lack of public support in the recent election that it has abandoned entirely its scheme of forcefully trying to unite free Ireland with British-ruled Ulster. Picture that, if you can.

Sure now what will the novelists do for a plot, and the poets for a rhyme and the playwrights for a second act without the IRA around for them to hang their hats on? What will the rest of the country do for a bit of excitement when the bold lads will no longer be popping across the border in the dead of night to blow up a police barracks or two? And what will Hollywood do with all those left over trenchcoats and wide-brim fedoras?

For nearly 50 years now, Irish literature, politics, journalism, pulpit oratory and everyday pub conversation have simmered and boiled with the doings of the secret underground army organization. Perhaps no army in history — at least none without uniforms, mimeograph machines, public relations officers or any of the other usual military appurtenances — has fought in so few wars, waged so many skirmishes and been the subject of so many books, arguments and police reports.

Certainly none could boast the likes of such diverse soldierly specimens as demolition expert Brendan Behan, escape artist Eamon DeValera, morale officer William Butler Yeats, the same that won the Nobel Prize for literature, and a Jewish merchant named Robert Briscoe, better known as Captain Swift to his comrades in trenchcoats.

Like much else in Ireland's past, the history of the IRA is steeped in tragedy, humor and confusion. Its roots go back to the Fenian Brotherhood, the secret, oath-bound society formed in the United States by Irish officers who had fought in the Civil War and who regarded it as their sacred duty to free Ireland from Britain by force of arms.

But, oddly enough, the IRA owed its immediate beginning to the Orangemen of Ulster. Shortly before World War I, when Ireland seemed on the verge of obtaining a modicum of home rule from England, the Protestant-dominated counties in the north formed the Ulster Volunteers to fight, if necessary, against being separated from the mother country. Just to give them something to fight against, should the wind blow that way, the Catholic-dominated counties in the south formed the Irish Volunteers.
